ACTIVITIES

COMMUNITY GOVERNMENT ASSOCIATION

"The complaint is frequently voiced that the issues raised by CGA are trivial and insignificant. I cannot agree. Viewed alone, such things as an honor system, book theft, curriculum changes, convocation requirements might seem worthy of only token attention. When they are placed in the context of the college community, however, they suddenly become problems that affect us each day."

TUTORIAL

"The Vandells"

PROJECT

Lillian Hale Entertains at the Tutorial Show

ALTHOUGH 1967 TEAMED WITH VARIOUS ACTIVITIES, SEVERAL WERE PARTICULARLY EXCITING AND/OR NOTORIOUS:

THE HONOR COUNCIL

Dean Hoogesteger christened 1967 as The Year of the Honor System — "where the teachers have the honor and the students have the system." It was the Honor Council's responsibility to minimize this distressing inconsistency. Self-ordained parietal hours and occasional pyrotechnic displays plus the annual crop of immorality and indecision provided this committee with many busy agendas.

THE INTER-FRATERNITY COUNCIL

Having successfully re-established Spring Rush and conscientiously regulated the Greek system throughout the year, The Inter-Fraternity Council faced a trying Spring Term. At issue was the "total opportunity" policy which offers any student a fraternity membership although he may have been denied a specific bid. Because Gene White, the pledge in question, was a Negro, the controversy became more complex and more widespread. Everyone from Chaplain Donovan Smucker to the B'nai Brith Anti-Defamation League was rumored to be involved and news spread as far as the New York Post where renowned journalist Henry de Zutter garnered such quotes as "He's the last person you'd expect to find at a beer blast," and went so far as to claim that White "encountered hostility from fraternity members."

THE FOOD REBELLION

What began as run of the mill grumbling about Lake Forest's less than outstanding cuisine, developed during winter term into a highly organized and highly successful movement dedicated to improving the food. Protest songs and food boycotts produced a major shake-up in the Szabo Food Service Management as well as an extra steak dinner — with seconds, no less.

The Administration who wisely avoid Commons at meal time was forced to examine the berated fare and in order to avoid being called upon again for such a distasteful taks, aided in the establishment of a student food committee who soon gladly reported that Szabo was running decidedly in the red.

THE STENTOR

The school newspaper instigated as well as reported controversy this year in its bold disapproval of the establishment of a faculty club in Holt House. Some teachers snarled, some grinned, and one original History professor through a rotten apple against his classroom wall in regard to this monumental issue.

HOME $WEET HOLT

Next year the cost of attending Lake Forest College will total $3,000 for a boarding student. The major reason for the $300 increase in tuition is to maintain the highest faculty salaries in the United States. For many students, this $3,000 is not an easy burden to carry. Though financial aid is liberal, most students must work during summers and the school year to provide the faculty with their above average stipend. But this does not seem to be enough.

A number of faculty members do not appear to be satisfied with this. They are now asking for, indeed some are demanding as their God-given right, a chandeliered house which the school now owns to be used as a faculty club — the Ph.D. Bar and Grill, as some students are already calling it.

Why should these faculty members feel that they have a right to the Holt House, a house valued at $85,000? The facilities in Commons may be poor, but what about the facilities available to the students? The faculty should remember that they at least own homes in which to entertain. The lounges available to students are the only places where it is at all possible to entertain guests, and the plastic furniture in the lounges is not exactly conducive to comfortable entertainment at that. At most, about 90 faculty members would use the several large rooms of Holt House planned for the club. We would be interested in seeing how many square feet of lounge space a Gregory resident has available as compared to how much space one faculty member would have.

If the faculty members are so anxious for a faculty club, why can't they use some of their own paychecks to buy Holt House or some other place suited to their purposes? One may argue that if the school is to keep a topnotch faculty it must provide them with a faculty club. We wonder whether the kind of teachers we want must be enticed to come here with a chandeliered barroom and lounge.

We can think of a number of other uses for the house. For one, if the school is desparate for money, as it always is, why not just sell the house? For another, only three commuting students have applied for the class of '71 so far this year which indicates that the number of boarding students will increase. We have dormitory space for only about 1000 residents. If we are to maintain the present number of students we shall have to increase dorm space even after the addition of the two proposed small dorms on North Campus.

Finally, the house could be used as the beginnings of the public affairs institute President Cole proposed in 1961. Here, authorities from industry, arts and letters and the professions would be available to interact with students.

But if the faculty still insists on a bar, only not strongly enough to pay for it themselves, we would suggest something a bit more moderate. North Hall will be renovated in a couple of years, and the students will probably be removed from the top floor. Why not make the top floor into a faculty lounge? It could be very attractive with an elevator and a large picture window behind the bar, overlooking the campus. This would perhaps be a bit more middle class than a big old house on Sheridan Road, but it would be cheaper since North Hall will be changed anyway.

If, in the end, these faculty members do get their way, we would demand that students be allowed to come and go in Holt House as they please. After all, it would be the house that we built. But student demands have a tendency to go unheeded, and we will probably have to settle for a compromise — guided tours on weekends.

Come on, faculty, we students and other supporters of the college pay through the nose for your words of wisdom. We aren't complaining about that, it is usually worth it. But we must stop short at providing you with a beautiful old house while we entertain ourselves in a series of cinder block cellars on Plasticville furniture.

We invite your response.

Here is one of the outstanding examples of Lake Forest's 1967 literary output.

In Medias Res

to E. M. Forster

In medias res, I straddle left and right,
Each path I take leaves others to explore,
Liberty is a lie, for choice brings freedom's flight.

The ebb and flow of seas foam no respite
As swelling highs and lows seek balanced shores.
In medias res, I straddle left and right.

The age propels, the flux of day and night
Compels decisions, pulling metal from ore.
Liberty is a lie, for choice brings freedom's flight,

The primal dual still clashes: wrong fences right,
As in earth's caves where good-and-evil soars.
In medias res, I straddle left and right.

Recruiting troops, ideal and real now fight,
Their camps assigned by philosophic lore.
Liberty is a lie, for choice brings freedom's flight.

Will East and West with North and South unite?
I turn and return, caught in chains of war.
In medias res, I straddle left and right.
Liberty is a lie, for choice brings freedom's flight.

Linda Gale Young

WLFC

The Lake Forest radio station emerged from a Fall Term wrought with financial and organizational difficulties to a surprisingly entertaining and organized Spring. Programming was expanded to include various types of music as well as the broadcast of important convocations and CGA meetings.

THE COMMUNICATIONS BOARD

In its continual re-evaluation of its purpose and worth on campus, the Communications Board was typical of many Lake Forest organizations. The final decision to remain indecisive was also representative.

THE DEBATE SOCIETY

The creation of a Lake Forest Debate Society proved to be an outstandingly popular addition to campus activities. Although various procedural problems arose, students and faculty members constructively discussed such topics as the country's confidence in President Johnson, the Congressional position of Adam Clayton Powell, the dissolution of HUAC, and the validity of the Warren Commission Report.

THE ASSOCIATION OF WOMEN STUDENTS

Despite CGA's threat of dissolution, AWS had an unusually strong year. Headed by Anne Dunne several major steps in the establishment of parietal hours and the modernization of dormitory rules were achieved. President-elect, Sandy Duncan, seemed to symbolize the girl's newly liberal approach and in her support of the future parietal system perhaps evoked the editorial in the Waukegan News-Sun which lamented that "There's a big fad on campus today that's much more nauseous than a belly full of fish — allowing student visitation rights in the dormitory bedrooms of the opposite sex." Luckily the editorial closed with the reassuring assertion that "all Lake Forest College trustees are not daydreamers."

AREOPAGUS

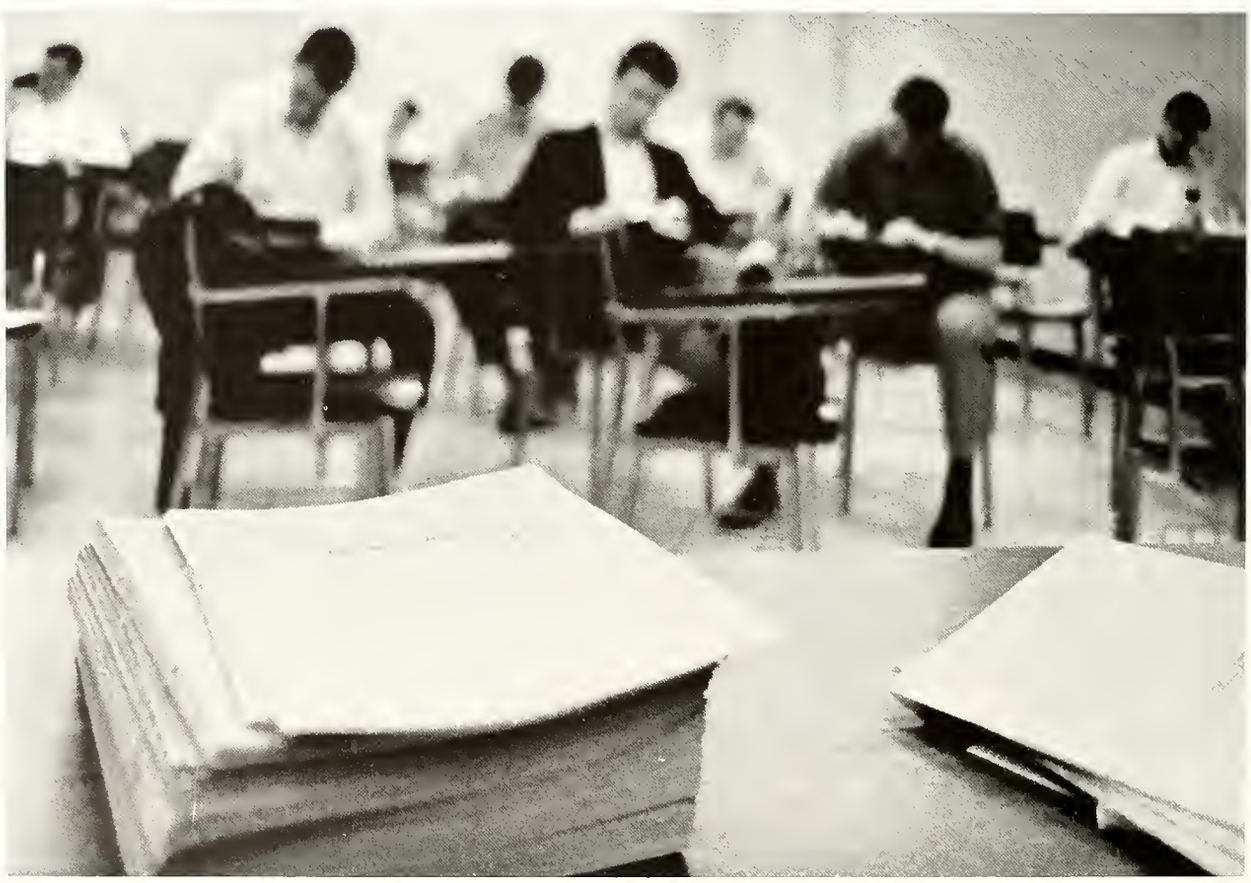
Lake Forest's council of the elders — selected Seniors and Faculty — met monthly this year at Dr. Cole's house. The possibilities for candid and confidential discussions of specific Lake Forest and general collegiate problems proved both stimulating and frustrating. Some felt that even the most enlightened conversation can never replace action. However, many saw the monthly meetings of Areopagus as significant factors in many general campus developments.

CLASS OFFICERS

After a mild controversy, the positions of class officers were dissolved because of a simple lack of things to do. Senior positions were retained, however, due to that class's unique responsibilities.

SENIOR COMPREHENSIVES

Senior Comprehensive examinations came and went with the traditional hysteria this year. A new tradition was established in the form of a post examination party during which more than 97 gallons of beer were consumed in less than four hours. Despite Szabo's cautiousness and assorted Administration threats the post examination food fight was also maintained.



During the first weeks of winter Term a group of anonymous students collected money in order to bring the wife and children of Danny Oyerinde to the United States from their native Nigeria. Danny had not seen his family since he began his studies in Lake Forest four years ago.

To the Lake Forest College community:

I am indeed grateful for your generosity for a gift of a large sum of money that will help pay for the passage of my family. It was really thoughtful of you; I must tell you it was the greatest surprise of my life.

When the news was broken to me by Dick Maiman it was difficult for me to believe it. Thank you so much.

I have written to convey this news to my wife. Right now I am not in the position to tell you when my family will be here, but I do hope they can be here before the end of spring term.

I am sure that they want to be here very much and meet all of you.

Once more I say thank you. I must say that I am having a wonderful time here, and it will be really hard to leave you. I have made more friends these few years I have been here, that I have ever made all my life. My experiences here have been wonderful too. It will be difficult to forget them.

Thank you —

Is the greatest happiness of ¿ Que es la vida? Un frenesí.

¿ Que es la vida? Una ilusion,
Una sombra, una ficción,
Yel mayor bien es pequeño,
Que toda la vida es sueño
Y los sueños sueños son.

Calderón de la Barca

Sharon Lambert

Shelby Triest

I would that my life remain a tear
And a smile . . .
A tear to unite me with those of Broken heart;
A smile to be a sign of my joy
In existence.

For love—I would split open your head and put a candle in behind the eyes.

Love is dead in us
if we forget
the virtues of an amulet and quick surprise.

All that I could hope to make you understand
Is only events: not what has happened.
And people to whom nothing
has ever happened
Cannot understand the unimportance of events.

Take time to think. It is the source of power.
Take time to play. It is the secret of perpetual youth.
Take time to read. It is the fountain of wisdom.
Take time to pray. It is the greatest power on earth.
Take time to love and be loved. It is a God-given privilege.
Take time to be friendly. It is the road to happiness.
Take time to laugh. It is the music of the soul.
Take time to give. It is too short a day to be selfish.
Take time to work. It is the price of success.
